Background

A review was conducted of the information distributed through the web site titled Cryptome Eyeball Series. This website includes a menu of 252 facilities that can be used to access maps, aerial photos, and detailed information for each facility. The list of facilities includes national critical infrastructure sites such as specific dams, airports, gas facilities, power transmission, as well as embassies, military support facilities, weapon depots, nuclear facilities, Intel complexes, military bases, homes and travel routes of specific US political figures, Homeland Security buildings, and some British sites (military and Intel). The general format for each site report includes a request for reader input of information, site descriptions and history, referral to other available web sites on the topic, maps, and aerial photographs with USGS coordinates for each photograph.
